KETCHIKAN - NATIVE CULTURAL CENTER

Ketchikan's History dates back to 1883, when a man named Snow built a salmon saltery. Two years later, businessmen from Portland, Oregon, hired Mike Martin to investigate possibilities for building a salmon cannery on the banks of Ketchikan Creek. By the early 1900's, Martin and the cannery's manager, George Clark, had set up a partnership and had opened a saltery and a general store. Two years later, with the fishing trade flourishing, Ketchikan was definitely in business. And by 1900, with a population of 800, the town was officially incorporated. Ketchikan is well known as the salmon capital of the world and a paradise for sport fishermen and naturalists alike. During the summer months, the town bustles with visitors from all over the world. While the rustic boardwalk on Creek Street preserves a distinct historic feel, the town hums with new construction to keep up with the ever-expanding wave of tourism. Ketchikan has a population of 14,500 and is built along a steep hillside, with sections of the town built right over the water on pilings. An outstanding collection of totem poles make a visit to Ketchikan essential for anyone interested in Native art. Ketchikan's name supposedly comes from the native term "Katch Kanna", which roughly translates: "spread wings of a thundering eagle" and rightly named, for you only need to look along the water line and you're likely to see many bald eagles on waterside perches. The beautiful town is located on the western coast of Revillagigedo Island, near the southernmost boundary of Alaska. It is 679 miles north of Seattle and 235 miles south of Juneau. The 2.2 million acre Misty Fjords National Monument lies 22 air miles east of Ketchikan. The area lies in the maritime climate zone noted for its warm winters, cool summers, and heavy precipitation. If it is culture that you desire, at "Saxman Native Village" you'll experience Native American traditions, the Saxman Totem Park, and the carving techniques that produce their native art.

BECAUSE WE CARE, NCL URGES YOU TO SANITIZE YOUR HANDS WHEN RETURNING TO THE VESSEL.

MORNING ACTIVITIES

Important Notice:

The Norwegian Spirit will periodically lose satellite connection during the cruise. This will affect your use of the Internet Café as well as the broadcast of some stations on your cabin television. This is due to the ships position in port and near the glacier. We thank you for your understanding.
